About the Organizers:

MANUU with the mandate to promote teaching, learning and research in Social Sciences and other disciplines in Urdu medium has successfully organized the Urdu Science Congress in February, 2017 and in February, 2018 and Urdu Social Science Congress in December, 2017. The Second National Urdu Social Science Congress, 2018 is scheduled to be organized by the Centre for Promotion of Knowledge in Urdu (CPKU) in association with the School of Arts & Social Sciences (SA&SS), Maulana Azad National Urdu University at Hyderabad on 15th and 16th November, 2018.

The School of Arts and Social Sciences was established in the year 2006. The School currently consists of eight Departments i.e., Women Education, Public Administration, Social Work, Political Science, Islamic Studies, History, Sociology and Economics and actively engaged in teaching and research. In 2016, the university has established Centre for Promotion of Knowledge in Urdu to develop knowledge of different disciplines in Urdu. The Centre also aims to hold National Urdu Congresses and publish peer reviewed journals in Science and Social Science every year.

Second National Urdu Social Science Congress 2018:

At the outset we should remember that Social Sciences have been playing a pivotal role in the development of knowledge and skills for the versatile development of human beings and that the trends in Social Sciences have been ever changing to meet the requirements of the changes in the society. Under the impact of powerful domestic and international forces, where globalization and opening of the economy have become reality, the Social Sciences, today, are more concerned with society than ever before. The earlier role of exclusivity is no longer being accorded to the Social Sciences now. In a complex State-Society relational situation, the focus of Social Sciences have been shifting more and more towards explaining diversity, complexity and interactivity in society and networking with other organizations, rather than exclusivity of government.

It is ironic that the Social Sciences, the area most vitally and directly concerned with social forces and trends, have been one of the last segments of the curriculum to come under careful and systematic review. It is here that the present Congress seeks to address the issues and emerging trends in Social Sciences, in its two days deliberations. The exercise is also expected to provide some measures of policy importance.

The Congress will discuss the knowledge base in Social Sciences in Urdu and discuss the ways and means to adopt the emerging trends in Social Sciences. Urdu language has a rich depository of knowledge in the fields of literature and religion and this has overshadowed its contribution to the fields of Sciences and Social Sciences. Hundred years back, the experiment of Osmania University to teach Sciences and Social Sciences in Urdu medium was a great success. Later, Urdu as a medium of instruction has been replaced with English and other vernacular languages not only in Osmania University but also in most of the other institutions. However, Urdu is still a medium of instruction in a good number of schools, colleges and madaras across India. There is a need to address the growing paucity of knowledge in Urdu in the field of Social Sciences and blend the teaching and research in Social Sciences in Urdu with the emerging trends in the field.

The purpose of this Congress is to bring together the Urdu knowing scholars, teachers, research students and all other stakeholders of Social Sciences on one platform. It aims to focus on the emerging trends in Social Sciences and explore the ways and means to adopt these changes in the teaching and research of Social Sciences through Urdu medium.
