Abstract

The growth of population has become one of the most fundamental and challenging problems of humanity today all over the world. As a result, most countries in the world are confronted with among other things, grave deficiency of food and serious inadequacy in facilities for education and health. Population explosion is a challenge to socio-economic development. Owing to rapid population growth, poverty, unemployment, improper housing, malnutrition, under-nutrition, pollution, wars, juvenile delinquency, water scarcity, illiteracy, political instability, terrorism, robberies, prostitution, drug addiction, alcoholism, human trafficking etc., have been on the increase day by day all the world over. Therefore, several national and international agencies are making serious efforts to control in discriminant population growth. Among the several ways devised to control it population education is considered to be an effective means. The future course of
